

We think that Traci Main is an incredible volunteer, and our guests seem to agree. She regularly receives great reviews for her guided visits in the sanctuary, and it's easy to see why her guests enjoy their time here. She leads each visit with such enthusiasm that it is as though it's her first, but with all the knowledge and experiences she's gained over her six years as a guide. The wolves themselves can display behaviors that enhance the visit, and Traci does a fantastic job describing them to our guests.

One of Traci's favorite stories to tell is about male wolf London, who regularly comes right up to the front of his enclosure. During the first scheduled visit one day, London surprised everyone when he strutted around with a raven in his mouth! He made sure to show his catch off to everyone. You can just imagine the mixture of reactions from our guests! When Traci's next group entered the sanctuary, London had an even bigger surprise – the raven was plucked completely clean! Traci could barely contain her chuckles. What a great showing of natural wolf behavior.

Before becoming a volunteer, Traci chaperoned trips to Wolf Haven for her children's fifth grade class. After the last trip that she chaperoned, she decided to fill out the volunteer application and we're certainly glad that she did. She often comments how blessed she is to be a volunteer at Wolf Haven, but it is truly Wolf Haven that is lucky to have her.
