

Meet Judah Jamison – Wolf Haven’s Volunteer of the Quarter

Judah Jamison, our newest Volunteer of the Quarter, stands out for his selflessness and flexibility. From day one, Judah has been more interested in doing what helps Wolf Haven the most, rather than picking a role he would “like”.

Judah started as a docent, greeting guests who visit Wolf Haven’s sanctuary and sharing information about wolves that can’t always be covered during the regular visit. Judah then learned that our education team was short on experienced presenters, and he jumped right in! He began assisting with presentations such as “Wolf Café” and “Vanishing Creatures”, and soon became a lead presenter himself.

It was two years ago when Judah and his family relocated to our area. They have always supported sanctuaries and rescue organizations, so it was natural for them to find some in our area. They found Wolf Haven and visited several times, which inspired Judah to apply as a volunteer. He is grateful for the opportunity to help in any way and he especially enjoys teaching and mentoring our youth visitors.

You don’t have to spend much time talking to Judah to get a sense for the care and compassion he has for all animals and the environment. It shines through whether he is presenting to a group or speaking with a few visitors. It is also apparent when he is assembling educational packets for a large group of students, or while preparing some of the next week’s meals for the wolves. We are thankful for all Judah does for Wolf Haven!
